

Audubon of the Western Everglades (AWE) is an independent chapter of National Audubon Society. Established in 1961, AWE is the oldest conservation organization in Collier County. Our Mission is: Advocating for Responsible Land Usage, Advocating for Water Quality/Quantity in Homes, Businesses & Natural Habitats, Advocating for Protection of Wildlife and Advocating on Issues Relating to Climate Change, Sea Level Rise, and Improved Energy Policies.

What We Do:

Programs: Guest lecture series featuring local and national speakers discussing a variety of topics, including wildlife and their habitats, conservation of natural resources and nature issues of local interest.

Education: AWE sponsors and promotes a variety of programs which enhance environmental education of children and adults in the community, including our Audubon Explorers 3rd Grade Program.

Field Trips: Guided trips and tours to the top birding destinations in Collier and surrounding counties.

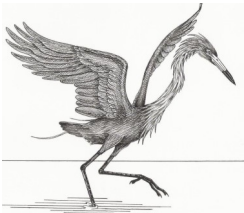

Conservation: AWE's Conservation Committee, and environmentalists track issues of importance to protect wildlife and natural areas. Conservation Action Alerts are issued when needed.

Community Outreach and Special Programs: AWE sponsors Burrowing Owls of Marco Island; Owl Watch Program, Shorebird Stewardship Program, and supports children's education with partners at FGCU and Corkscrew Swamp in order to promote increased awareness and coastal stewardship.

AWE Community Involvement:

- Over 30 Field Trips, 6 Programs and 1000+ attendees annually
- Youth Education with over 450 Collier County Students attending
- Restoration of the Greater Everglades
- Protection and restoration of wetlands and water
- Protection of fragile coastal habitats
- Climate change and regional energy policy
- Land use/growth management
- Increased lands into conservation status
- Protection of over 450 burrows in our Owl Watch Program
